

World Wide Treasures 4 - Gone surfin'

After a long flight and a drive through Alberta farmland, Martin arrived in Drumheller. The dinosaur was hard to miss, and after a few minutes of crawling through shrubs and digging between roots, he found what he was looking for: a small box carved out of sandstone, the lid decorated with some kind of wolf and the letter J. Martin carefully lifted the lid and removed the folded paper from the small cavity inside. There were what looked like some sort of maps, one of them symbolic and probably not to scale (see next page), and a little note:

“Well done for coming this far. Now, you may have to win the lottery to find your next treasure. Or pay a bribe. But believe me, it will be worth it. Good luck! J.”

Martin wasn't sure what this meant, but he quickly returned to his motel and began to work on the map.

Welcome to “World Wide Treasures”. As the name suggests, the treasure for this hunt can be hidden anywhere on this planet. There is no digging involved and we have kept the hunt fairly straightforward, so that everyone can have a go. You will, however, have to use the internet for research. Go to Google Earth, explore places and photos and use the tools provided on that website. Please submit a complete solution, i.e. explain the various parts of the puzzles as detailed as possible, and this time we would also like to receive the coordinates and a photo of the exact location. Remember that Google Earth allows you to “fly” into places from various angles and directions.

The closing date is 14th March 2014 and all correct answers received by that date will be put in a hat and the winner drawn from that. So everyone has the same chance of winning. If there is no correct entry by that date, the first correct answer submitted thereafter will win. The prize is a free membership in The Armchair Treasure Hunt Club for one year.

Please send your solution to roger@treasureclub.net. Good luck!
